Cornish and Sanee our battery only allowed four hits, the big score was the result of errors.

AUTHOR OF "GINX'S BABY."

Forty Years Ago Edward Jenkins Was the Kipling of His Day.

One of the most distinguished sons of the Montreal High School passes off the roll by the death in London of Edward Jenkins, ex-M.P., politician, humorist, author and editor, creator of the immortal "Ginx's Baby." Some forty years ago Edward Jenkins was so much in the limelight in the literary world that his position in the sphere of letters at that time has been compared to that of Rudyard Kipling the man to-day. His style had the Kipling touch, and both men had close connection with India. Mr. Jenkins was born at Bangalore, India, in July, 1838, his father being Rev. Dr. John Jenkins, so long pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Montreal. He came to Canada with his parents at an early age and was educated at the Montreal High School and McGill University. Then, after a course at the University of Pennsylvania, he was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn, in 1854, and had a most remarkable career in the years which followed. He was counsel for the coolies on the Demerara Coolie Commission of 1870; agent-general for Canada from 1874 to 1876; a member of the royal commission on copyright in 1877; and about that time wrote his famous novel, entitled "Ginx's Baby," by which he will be remembered when his political career has been forgotten. Among his other humorous books were "Lord Bantam," "The Coolie," "Little Hodge," "The Devil's Chain," "Barney Geoghegan," etc., etc. Beginning his life as a Gladstonian Liberal he was by turns an Independent Liberal and Imperialist, and in his later years a Conservative. He represented the city of Dundee, Scotland, as a Radical from 1874 to 1880, but was then defeated, and though he sought the suffrage of the electors of that city in 1885, and 1896, he had changed his political clothes and the people would not avail themselves of his services. He was one of the great historical characters at the Montreal High School, stories of his bright sallies, of his boyish jokes, of his prowess on the football field and in gymnasium being handed down from generation to generation. One of his brothers, Mr. George Ernest Jenkins, was one of the under masters in the big school in the seventies, and to the great education, and delight of the boys he often recalled the sayings and doings of his brother when he was a High School boy, and occasionally read in class a clever letter from his brother humorously referring to his school-days at the "Old High," and expressing his pride in its continued prosperity.

The late Mrs. Gregor Mattice, wife of Col. Mattice, for so long a member of the militia staff, was a sister of Mr. Jenkins.—Chesterfield in Family Herald and Weekly Star.

An Illustrious Family.
During the absence from Canada of His Excellency Earl Grey, Judge Girouard, of the Supreme Court of Canada, is once more acting as administrator of the Government, and is to all effects and purposes clothed with the same authority and power as the Governor-General. The right of the administrator to be styled "His Excellency," was asserted by Sir H. Elzevir Taschereau, formerly Chief Justice, while acting as administrator in the interval between the departure of the Earl of Minto, and the arrival of His Excellency Earl Grey, and he was informed by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in reply to an enquiry, that the administrator is rightly styled "His Excellency."

Judge Girouard's son, Col. Sir Percy Girouard, as governor and commander-in-chief of the East Africa Protectorate, is also entitled to the designation "His Excellency." I am told, with how much truth I do not know, that no other family in the British Empire has ever before had the honor of having two of its members entitled to be so addressed. Whether the coincidence is absolutely unique or not, it is sufficiently rare to deserve notice, particularly in Canada, and more particularly as the Girouard family is a purely French-Canadian one. Judge Girouard, who was born at St. Timothee, beside the Cedar Rapids, in 1836, is a descendant of Antoine Girouard, of Montlucon, France, who was private secretary to Governor de Ramezay at Montreal in 1720. The family has remained in Canada ever since.

The Wrong Fight.
In Queen's Park, Toronto, one glorious afternoon last week, a group of assorted loungers were discussing in heated fashion the news of the day. Another happy idler approached and wanted to know the matter of argument.

"It's the Jackson controversy," said an elderly orator. "What do you think of it?"

"Well, now," said the newcomer. "I don't really take much stock in it. Of course, I ain't saying that a nigger can't be a white man's equal in some respects, but when it comes to a white man going into the ring against a nigger, I must say that I draw the line."

"Oh, go on," said the elderly orator. "This isn't the Jeffries-Johnson fight that we're talkin' about. This is theology. Jackson's a minister."

"Shucks," said the newcomer, "what on earth can a minister be in a scrap about?"

Very Much Surprised
"You look surprised, Mrs. Mangle; what's the matter?"
"Why, my son, Tom, came in just now full of an avairy meet he has seen. He told me some news of the flights in the air that were absolutely incredulous and so surprised me as to leave me almost in a state of putrefaction."—Baltimore American.

A pale, wan woman on her deathbed said, in a weak voice, to her husband—"Henry, if I die, promise me one thing." "Gladly, my poor darling. What it is I am to promise?" "Promise me that you will marry Mary Simpson." The man started. "But," he said, "I thought you hated her!" "I do, Henry," the dying woman whispered. "I want to get even with her."

Mrs. Jones—"Did you really expect me to accept you the night you proposed?"

Mr. Jones—"Yes, love. Just before I got to your house I heard a dog howl three times, saw the moon over my left shoulder, and walked under a ladder."

LIFE A NIGHTMARE

Helpless and Broken Down, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Came to the Rescue.

There are many who think anaemia is a trouble confined to growing girls and women, but this is not the case. Thousands of men are anaemic, and attribute their growing weakness to mental or physical overwork, or worry, and who do not appear to realize that they are swiftly passing into that condition known as general debility, and that their trouble is due entirely to the fact that their blood is watery and impure. If the trouble is not taken in time, they pass from one stage to another until a breakdown is complete, and often until a cure is beyond hope. To men in all walks of life there is no medicine so valuable as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you feel jaded, weak or worn out these Pills will make that rich, red blood that puts vim and energy into every portion of the body.

Making good blood is the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and good blood is the one secret of good health and vigorous life. An excellent case in point is that of Mr. R. W. Ellis, of Balcarres, Sask.; who says: "Just four years ago I was in England making preparations to fulfil the long cherished ambition of coming to Canada. My health at that time was normal, though I was never very strong. Three weeks before the time of my departure I was overcome with a breakdown and often until a cure is beyond hope. To men in all walks of life there is no medicine so valuable as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you feel jaded, weak or worn out these Pills will make that rich, red blood that puts vim and energy into every portion of the body.

The school house was crowded to its utmost capacity on Monday last to hear the Rev W D Reid M A, B.D. Montreal peach, Mr Reid is supt. of Home Mission work for the Presbyterian church in Canada and at the beginning of the service expressed his satisfaction with the interest taken in the work in this neighborhood. Great credit is due Madames Merrill and Logan for the excellent arrangements and for the beautiful manner in which the school house was adorned. The collection at Trochu and Lakeview amounted to the handsome sum of $27.00.

Another intellectual feast is in store for the church goers of Lake View. Mr Harris has made arrangements whereby Rev W G W Fortune M A, B D, late of Red Deer, Gen Secretary of Social and Moral League will preach in Lake View school house on Sunday evening Sept 4th. (Concluded from Last Week's Edition)

Saturday 16th. Comes the time of war, churning, washing, baking, scrubbing, and a thousand other things which I will give in detail. Up at five o'clock put on meat, porridge, milked, fed the calves and pigs and then I remembered there was five setting hens to feed so I went to work and fed them. I took food to first one, she flew in my face and nearly scratched my eyes out; at least I got her by the neck; I don't think the eggs will hatch now. Went in and Mortie had breakfast ready, so I got the boiler on to wash to heat while I churned. Got the churning done and went into the tub washing. I remembered seeing my wife put in lye, so I dropped in a dose and you should have seen it boil. I had to weaken the water to get the washing out it was too strong. I then printed the butter and mixed down the bread. My hands now looked awfully pale and I thought I must be getting sick; thought of sending for Dr G—— but when I looked in the glass and saw my face was natural the scare passed off. I know now how the ladies have such white hands, it must be from working butter and baking bread. Now I had the scrubbing to do so I got at it. Got the scrubbing brush and commenced; got down on my knees which I hated awfully to do and the first thing off went my suspender buttons. Looked round and there was the bread running over, so I quit the floor and mixed it into pans. Then I thought I had better black the stove so I got a brush and put shoe polish on and the smoke run me out of the house. I be — if I will go to so much bother again if the king was coming. I thought it was no bother to batch; and now I burned my fingers, it is not what it is cracked up to be. So Mr Editor will you keep a space in your paper for a want ad. I may have to use it soon if the old lady does not soon return from visiting in Washington.

"your ladyship," called Saunders desperately, "do you approve of my plan? It's only a subterfuge."

"Heartily!" she exclaimed, with one of her rarest laughs. "The only objection that I can see to it is that it leaves out my husband and Mrs. Browne. They are very nice people, Saunders, and you should be more considerate of them. Come, Mr. Browne." She took the American's arm and gayly danced from the room. Lord Deppingham's eyes glowed with pride in his charming wife as he followed with the heartsick Drusilla.

"I would have won them over if Britt had not interfered," almost Geneva gently waved her handkerchief wailed little Mr. Saunders, his eyes glazed with mortification.

"I'm getting to hate that man," said Miss Pelham loyally. "And the others! They give me a pain! Don't mind them, Tommy, dear."

Lady Deppingham and Browne came upon the princess quite unexpectedly. She was in the upper gallery, leaning against the stone rail and gazing steadily through the fieldglasses in the direction of the bungalow. They held back and watched her, unseen. The soft light of early evening fell upon her figure as she stood erect, lithe and sinuous, in the open space between the ivy clad posts.

Geneva smiled securely in her supposed aloofness from the world. Then, suddenly moved by a strange impulse, she gently waved her handkerchief as if in greeting to some one far off in the gloaming. The action was a mischievous one, no doubt, and it had its consequences—rather sudden and startling, if the observers were to judge by her subsequent movements. She lowered the glass instantly. There was a quick catch in her breath, as if a laugh had been checked; confusion swept over her, and she drew back into the shadows as a guilty child might have done. They distinctly heard her murmur as she crossed the flags and disappeared through the French window without seeing them:

"Oh, dear, what a crazy thing to do!"

Geneva, peering through the glasses, had discovered the figure of Chase on the bungalow porch. She was amused to find that he, from his distant post, was also regarding the chateau through a pair of glasses. A spirit of adventure, risk, mischief, as uncontrolled as breath itself, impelled her to flaunt her handkerchief. That treacherous spirit deserted her most shamelessly when her startled eyes saw that he was waving a response. She lay awake for a long time that night wondering what he would think of her for that wretched bit of frivolity. Then at last a new thought came to her relief, but it did not give her the peace of mind that she desired.

He may have mistaken her for Lady Deppingham.

CHAPTER XIV.

TWO CALLS FROM THE ENEMY.

D EPPINGHAM was up and about quite early the next morning—that is, quite early for him. He had his rolls and coffee and signed out in the shady park for a smoke. The princess, whose sense of humiliation had not been lessened by the fitful sleep of the night before, was walking in the shade of the trees on the lower terrace, beyond the fountain and the artificial lake.

"I was thinking of you," she said in greeting as he came up.

"How nice you are," he said. "But, my dear, is it wise in you to be thinking of us handsome devils? It's a most dangerous habit—thinking of other men."

"But, Deppy, dear, the prince isn't here," she said, falling into his humor. "That makes quite a difference, doesn't it?"

"Your logic is splendid. Pray resume your thoughts of me—if they were pleasant and agreeable. I'll not blow on you to Karl. By the way, I have a compliment for you. Browne says your hair is more beautiful than Pong's. That's quite a compliment. Titian never even dreamed of hair like Pong's."

"You know, Deppy," she said, with a pout, "I am very unhappy about my hair. It is quite red. I don't see why I should have hair like that of a red cocker. It seems so animalish."

"Rubbish! Why should you complain? Look at my hair. It's been likened more than once to that of a Jersey cow."

"Oh, how I adore Jersey cows! Now, I wouldn't mind that a bit."

They were looking toward the lower gates while carrying on this frivolous conversation. A man had just entered and was coming toward them. Both recognized the tall figure in gray flannels.

"I trust I am not intruding," Chase said as he came up. His gaze was as much for Deppingham as for the princess, his remark quite impersonal.

"Not at all, not at all," said Deppingham quickly, his heart leaping to the conclusion that the way to the American bar was likely to be opened at last. "Charmed to have you here, Mr. Chase. You've been most unneighborly. Have you been presented to her highness, the—Oh, to be sure. Of course you have. Stupid of me."

"We met ages ago," she said, with an ingenuous smile, which would have disarmed Chase if he had been prepared for anything else. As a matter of fact, he had approached her in the light of an adventurer who expects nothing and grasps at straws.

"In the dark ages," said he so ruefully that her smile grew. He had come, in truth, to ascertain why her husband had not come with her.

"But not the forgotten variety, I fancy," said Deppingham shrewdly.

It would be impossible for the princess to forget the greatest of all fools," said Chase.

"He was no worse than other mortals," said she.

"Thank you," said Chase. Then he turned to Lord Deppingham. "My visit requires some explanation, Lord Deppingham. You have said that I am unneighborly. No doubt you appreciate my reasons. One has to respect appearances," with a dry smile.

"When one is in doubt he must do as the Moslems do, especially if the Moslems don't want him to do as he wants to do."

"No doubt you're right, but it sounds a bit involved," murmured Deppingham. "Lady Deppingham will be delighted to see you. Are you ready to come in, princess?"

They started toward the chateau, keeping well in the shade of the boxed trees, the princess between the two men.

"I say, Chase, do you mind relieving my fears a bit? With all due respect to your estimable clients, it occurs to me that they are likely to break over the traces at any moment and raise the very old Harry at somebody else's expense. I'd like to know if my head is really safe."

"I came to see you in regard to that very thing, Lord Deppingham. I don't want to alarm you, but I do not like the appearance of things. They don't trust me and they hate you—quite naturally. I'm rather sorry that our British man-of-war is out of reach. Pray don't be alarmed, princess. It is most improbable that anything evil will happen. And, in any event, we can hold out against them until relief comes."

"We?" demanded Deppingham.

"Certainly. If it comes to an assault of any kind upon the chateau I trust that I may be considered as one of you. I won't serve assassins and bandits—at least not after they've got beyond my control. Besides, if the worst should come they won't discriminate in my favor."

"Why do you stay here, Mr. Chase?" asked the princess. "You admit that they do not like you or trust you. Why do you stay?"

"I came out here to escape certain consequences," said he candidly. "I'll stay to enjoy the uncertain ones. I am not in the least alarmed on my own account. The object of my visit, Lord Deppingham, is to ask you to be on your guard up here. After the next steamer arrives and they learn that Sir John will not withdraw me in submission to Raoul's demand, with the additional news that your solicitors have filed injunctions and have begun a bitter contest that may tie up the estate for years—then, I say, we may have trouble. It is best that

"Thank you. It may be my death sentence, but I'll stay."

In the wide ear gallery they saw Lady Deppingham and Bobby Browne deeply engrossed in conversation. Deppingham started and involuntarily allowed his hand to go to his temple as if to check the thought that flitted through his brain.

"Good Lord," he said to himself. "Is it possible that they are considering that—Saunders' proposition? Surely they can't be thinking of that!"

As he led the way across the green Browne's voice came to them distinctly. He was saying earnestly:

"The mere fact that we have come out to this blessed isle is a point in favor of the islanders. Chase won't overlook it, and you may be sure Sir John Brodney is making the most of it. Our coming is a guarantee that we consider the will valid. It is an admission that we regard it as sound. If not, why should we recognize its provisions, even in the slightest detail? Britt is looking for hallucinations and all!"

"Sh!" came in a loud hiss from somewhere near at hand, and the two in the gallery looked down with startled eyes upon the distressed face of Lord Deppingham. They started to their feet at once, astonishment and wonder in their faces. They could scarcely believe their eyes. The enemy!

He was smiling broadly as he lifted his helmet, smiling in spite of the discomfort that showed so plainly in Deppingham's manner.

Chase was warmly welcomed by the two heirs. Lady Agnes was especially cordial. Her eyes gleamed joyously as she lifted them to meet his admiring gaze. She was amazingly pretty. The conviction that Chase had mistaken her for Lady Agnes the evening before took a fresh grasp upon the mind of the Princess Geneva. A shameless wave of relief surged through her heart.

Chase was presented to Drusilla Browne, who appeared suddenly upon the scene, coming from no one knew where. There was a certain strained look in the Boston woman's face and a suspicious redness near the bridge of her little nose.

"It's very good of you," said the enemy after all of them had joined in the invitation. "Why is it that I am more fortunate than your own attorney? I am but a humble lawyer, after all, no better than they. Would you mind telling me why I am honored by an invitation to sit at the table with you?" The touch of easy sarcasm was softened by the frank smile that went with it. Deppingham felt it his duty to explain.

"It's—it's—er—oh, yes. It's because you're a diplomat," he finally remarked in triumph. It was a grand recovery, thought he. "Saunders is an ass, and Britt would be one if Browne could only admit it, as I do. Rubbish! Don't let that trouble you. Eh, Browne?"

"Besides," said Bobby Browne breezily, "I haven't heard of your clients inviting you to lunch, Mr. Chase. The cases are parallel."

"I'm not so sure about his clients' wives," said Deppingham, with a vast haw-haw! Chase looked extremely uncomfortable.

"I am told that some of them are very beautiful," said Geneva sedately.

"Other men's wives always are, I've discovered," said Chase gallantly. "I should know what to expect. I am not a traitor to my cause in telling you this. It is no more than I would expect from you were the conditions reversed."

"It's mighty decent in you, Chase, to put us on our guard. Would you mind talking it over with Browne and me after luncheon? You'll stay to luncheon, of course?"

Remarkable Blind Man.

There has just died, at Boxgrove, Chichester, a remarkable blind man, named Stephen Targett, who was in his ninety-third year. More than fifty years ago Targett lost his eyesight while at work in Woolwich Arsenal, and, being pensioned off, went to live at Hailaker. He was appointed village post master, and for twenty years daily delivered and collected letters in the district. For thirty years he was the local newsagent, and he sang in the village choir for forty years. He learnt to make fibre mats and clothes baskets, both of which he supplied to the ducal houses of Goodwood and Molecomb.

ROSEBERY'S GRAND UNCLE.

He Was a Canadian Lawyer Who Lived and Died in Quebec.

Few are aware that the great publicist, Lord Rosebery, had a grand uncle who played a prominent part in the public life of Lower Canada half a century ago. He was the Hon. Francis Ward Primrose, advocate, who lived most of his life in the city of Quebec and died in 1860 at the age of seventy-six. The deceased gentleman was the second son of the then Earl Rosebery, and might, of course, have had a prominent career in England.

He came to Quebec in early manhood, for reasons which made it inconvenient to live in England. For many years he stood at the front of the legal profession in Quebec, and that he earned and retained the good opinions and respect of his fellow practitioners, is illustrated by the highly flattering and complimentary resolutions adopted by them after his death. His remains were interred in Mount Hermon cemetery. Mr. Primrose maintained no correspondence with his family in England during his residence in this country. Prior to coming to Canada he sat with honor in the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland, where he was a consistent supporter of Liberal principles. An obituary notice published in The Quebec Telegraph at the time of his death, said: "He was one of the junior counsel of the unfortunate Queen Caroline, and in youth was a prominent cadet of a great Whig family, and, even then, a trusted member of the Whig party. Like his brother, the present Earl of Rosebery, he was an intimate friend of Lord Brougham, when Brougham, a rising barrister, was struggling at the bar without his noble and honorable friend's advantages of birth and station. He was equally intimate with Denman and a whole galaxy of the forensic talent of the day. In Canada he wore the robe of Queen's Counsel with dignity, conducted the crown business for a brief space impartially and well, and was an advocate of the first rank, uniting the fire and energy of youth to the caution and experience of age, as all will admit who heard his full and elevated voice and noticed his vigorous and appropriate action on his very last appearance before the courts, or noticed how he could quote old statutes and old authors from the capacious stores of his vivid and accurate memory, while young men with book in hand painfully toiled after him, or the manner in which on occasions he poured forth the lessons of constitutional and Parliamentary law from the deep and rich lore of English history."

Among other notable persons who celebrated their natal day last month was the Earl of Amherst, who is seventy-four years of age. The owner of about 8,000 acres, Lord Amherst was at one time a captain in the Coldstream Guards, and has seen service in the Crimean war. He was educated at Eton, and since 1898 has been Pro-Grandmaster English Freemasons. The inevitable story concerns a young lawyer who was perambulating the courts with an air of scarcely being able to find time to do anything—when his boy tracked him down in one of the corridors. "Oh, sir!" said the boy, "there is a man at your office with a brief, sir." "What, a brief? Great heavens!" And the young fellow began to run through the passages as fast as he could for the prey should escape him. "Don't hurry, sir," cried the boy. "I've locked him in!"

Grigg of London.

E. W. M. Grigg, colonial editor of The Times, London, during his visit to Toronto with Mr. J. S. Willison, has been an interesting speaker at several gatherings. The other evening at the Canadian Club he followed Senator Ross' comprehensive survey of the Australia constitution and spoke of the attitude of his paper upon matters pertaining to the Empire, particularly defence.

"Let me tell you," he said, "what I think is the English attitude toward war: War is no longer the sport of kings; no longer the movement of the ruling party, but war of the people. War in England is regarded in much the spirit in which modern commercialism regards insurance, a disagreeable necessity to be put aside as quickly as possible. The element that really counts in war to-day is not the force of armament, but the forethought, care and force put into the question beforehand. We feel that the battles of the future will be won, probably long before they are fought. We hope they will never be fought, but if we secure what is best for the Empire we will do so only in the care and forethought we give to the question of defence." Likening the Empire to the Banyan tree, whose separate branches take root, he said: "The British Empire cannot stand on a British stem alone; it must rest also on such stems as Canada, Australia and South Africa, drawing strength from our own separate skies and soils and adhering to the parent stem to get added strength."

The Dominion's Dairies.

Some idea of the "intrinsic worth" of the dairy cow can be formed when it is known that $29,000,000 represents the dairy product exports of Canada in 1900 and the home consumption no less than $90,000,000 for the same year. Ninety million dollars for milk and butter is a big pill to swallow, but down it must go, for Canadian statisticians have made it so, and figures won't lie." After all, it is only an average of ten or twelve dollars a head.

THE DAIRYMAN.

A careful milker, quiet in his ways about the stable, is worth many dollars more in a single season than one who is brutal. There is not a cow, no matter how poorly bred, that will not respond to kind treatment.

Stick to One Breed.

Stick to one breed, says the Wisconsin Agriculturist. It is folly to be changing breeds continually in grading up a herd. No progress can be made and only an incongruous mixture can result from such a practice. When you have started to grade up to one breed stick to that and use the best you can get in it to accomplish the grading up-process.

Cleanliness a Safeguard.

Cleanliness about the town, the stable, clothes of the milkers and all utensils cannot be too carefully looked after. Milk is a product that is condemned raw. For this reason dirt becomes dangerous. Dirt may not be pleasant to think of in a food product when cooked, but you do not feel that you are taking the same risk in regard to health.

Sand For Bedding.

Those who have used sand for bedding for cows are pleased with it. Sand is warm, easy to lie upon and prevents the cow from slipping when reaching her food. It is an excellent absorber of liquids, easily shoveled in and out, a superior divisor of droppings and is an excellent substance to apply to cold lands.

Tuberculosis in Calves.

Through the use of a cow with a tuberculous udder it was found that calves taking milk from such cows contract tuberculosis with great rapidity. One calf that took the milk of the cow for several months was affected with generalized tuberculosis at the age of five months, and four calves, of which three sucked the milk from the cow's udder respectively one, three and seven days and one which was fed the milk from a pail thirty days, also contracted tuberculosis.

To Prevent Milk Fever.

Cows that are to calve in winter or early spring should have about six quarts of some vegetable every day for two weeks before calving. If this course is pursued there will be no milk fever or any of the other many troubles incident to calving time.

A Shrewd Scottish Lawyer.

TRADE WITH COLONIES

IMPERIAL PREFERENCE IS DISCUSSED IN BRITAIN

British Commons in Sympathy with the Policy of Preference as Advocated at the Colonial Conference—Appreciate the Determination of Canada to Build up a Powerful Nation.

London.—Hon. Balfour took the last opportunity before the next imperial conference to raise the question of imperial preference. He remarked on the consistency wherewith since Canada made the first appeal in 1843, every colonial statesman has pressed on the mother country one policy and he declared the views of these great statesmen were not merely commercial, they had in view the idea of empire with mutual good ones in the matter of tariffs as one of its bonds. The leader of the opposition emphasizing the fact that the colonies had developed into great nations and warned the government that they also fully realized the value of tariff negotiations. He urged the result of Canada's treaties with France, Germany and the United States had been a diminution of preferential advantages to Britain. The government and those who supported them seem to think that they could remain outside this network of treaties which was more and more arranging the channels whereinto international trade would go. Canada had felt the impossibility of the policy of isolation and it is quite certain the great colonies who had entered upon this course of independent fiscal negotiations could not in force of circumstances stop where they were. The process is just beginning to go on. Concluding, he made a strong appeal that the policy of preference should become the policy of all British statesmen instead of the policy of only one party.

Premier Asquith who replied immediately said he heard with great satisfaction that the question which had slumbered so long would be raised again. It had been suggested that the government was insensible and unresponsive to the wishes expressed of the colonial conference of 1907. That the conference had passed 20 resolutions and on 17 the government had taken action. Resolutions in respect to preference were carried against the British government but the position of the government had not changed since that time. When it came to practical concrete working out of the policy of preference, it remained as nebulous and full of inconsistencies and absurdities as seven years ago. Colonies were not going to allow British manufacturers to become active competitors with their own cheap raw materials. The premier proceeded. The government could not consent to impose a tax which would enhance the cost upon either food or raw material and thereby handicap our productive power with industrial competition of the world. If this was done the empire could never be kept together or be what it is today. The empire is bound not so much by material as by moral and social ties, loyal affection and sympathy.

Rt. Hon. Chaplin urged that a two shilling duty on foreign wheat would not equal one shilling on the entire supply which would not raise the price of bread the fraction of a farthing. He declared that what Canada had in effect said was we have to buy fifty millions pounds sterling of manufactured goods every year. If you give us preference we are ready to put such duties respecting these articles on all foreign countries as will give your control of the market.

MacMaster said there was a firm determination in Canada to build up, with the co-operation of Britain, a great powerful nation. The true policy was to lend all the encouragement possible to the settlement of Canada by giving her reasonable preference.

Seeley said if Britain's refusal to adopt the policy of preference, will lead, as Balfour claimed, towards dismemberment rather than unification surely signs of dismemberment should begin to appear but he declared exactly the opposite was the case.

Labor Exchanges With the Colonies

London.—In the commons recently Sydney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, stated that the whole subject in relation to labor exchanges to employment in the colonies was now under careful consideration in conjunction with the colonial office.

The question of the cable information concerning the demand for labor in the oversea dominions is being considered, also the payment of men's fares from one part of the empire to another.

Mr. Keir Hardie enquired if the opinions of trade unionists in Canada were to be considered, but Br. Buxton made no reply.

China Satisfied with Treaty

Pekin.—China's reply to the announcement of the recently concluded Russo-Japanese convention was delivered to the legations of these two countries recently. As has been expected, the Pekin government does not fail to point out its satisfaction at the expressed purpose upon the part of Russia and Japan to adhere to the terms of the Portsmouth treaty and over the mutual pledge for the maintenance in Manchuria of the status quo and the principle of the open door for commercial developments.

SPAIN'S NEW CHURCH POLICY

Premier Announces That in Future There Will be no Step Backward in Favor of the Papacy

Paris.—Striking and significant statements explaining the present great politico-religious crisis in Spain are made by Premier Canalejas, of Spain, in an interview published in Le Journal of this city. It is said to be the first definite declaration made of the Liberal policies of young King Alfonso's government.

"Spain will never again become," exclaimed the premier energetically, "what it once was in history to its own misfortune and its own ruin—namely, the weaponed arm of the church and the soldier of Rome, imposing the faith on the entire planet by fire and steel."

"We cannot consent to go backward thus and we are ready and resolved to suppress utterly, if necessary, the things tending to make Spain repeat its course in history. Liberty for all, yes, but not a liberty outside the state against the state and detrimental to the state. That would be a diminution of the civil power not countenanced by the absolute monarchs who nevertheless have added great piety to the consciousness of their own rights."

"It is a struggle between free-thinkers and the papacy?" the premier was asked.

"No," he replied, "Rome and the prelates affirm it vainly. The struggle which has been impending for a long time, is not between Catholics and free-thinkers, or between the adherents of Catholicism and the followers of other religious or of no religion. It is merely a struggle between Liberals and reactionaries. There is no argument about the Catholic religion to which the majority remain faithful.

"The government over which I preside does not aim directly or indirectly to attack the rights of the church which is an inviolable and eternal institution, the existence of which does not depend upon the goodwill or the bad will of governments, but upon the adherence of millions of citizens. It would be folly to attack the life of the church.

"Wars of religion belong to the past. The mission of the government today is to remain neutral. Let us leave the confusion of church and state to the ancient epochs, when kings and emperors were also pontiffs and the church and state were one. It is intolerable, to abuse or absorb the prerogative of others. This is Spain's position today."

Forty Million Dollars Disappears

London.—Charges that more than $40,000,000 has disappeared from the assets of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Co. of the United States, owned mostly by English investors, were made at the annual meeting by R. H. Glyn, who presided.

Glyn declared that the $40,000,000 had been lost mostly in wheat gambling and improperly issued notes.

Another $1,845,000, he added, was not traceable, the notes for this sum not having been recorded, or else the records had been destroyed.

An additional $900,000 had been lost in agents' balances, debts uncollected, and bills receivable.

Glyn stated that the creditors of the company had already received 47 per cent. of their claims in cash, and the balance in second mortgage bonds. After the shareholders receive 7.5 per cent., he said the balance of the money available will also be paid to the creditors.

It was too soon, he stated, to estimate the result of the lease of the plants, but the present accounts showed that last year's profits amounted to $134,000.

New York.—Surprise was expressed in Wall Street, when the above cable gained circulation, because of the fact at the time of the failure of the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Co. in August 1908, the assets were estimated at $3,500,000. The value of these exceeded $15,000,000.

Big Diamond is Discovered

New York.—A report has reached Maiden lane from Johannesburg, South Africa, of the finding of another large diamond in the Premier mine. The gem is said to weigh more than 191 carats and is described as a pure white stone, absolutely flawless, and measuring two inches long by about three-fourths of an inch thick. It tapers in breadth from one and one-fourths of an inch to three-fourths of an inch at the smallest end, and is valued at $150,000 uncut. The Premier mine became world famous in January, 1905, when the Gullinan diamond was discovered.

This gem, the largest ever found, weighed 3,032 carats in the rough. It was cut into smaller stones and presented to King Edward VII. by the Transvaal government.

The latest large diamond to be taken from the Premier mine probably will rank also among the world's famous gems.

Some Changes to be Made in the Niobe

London.—Rear-Admiral Charles E. Kingsmill, returns to Canada in a fortnight. The admiralty has agreed to alterations in the Niobe, as suggested by Canada. The Niobe will not sail for Canada until September. The Rainbow will sail the first week in August. The Admiralty has agreed to lend the skilled ratings and instructional staff officers for the safe conduct of the ship. Rear-Admiral Kingsmill states that inquiries are now being made among firms on the admiralty list for tenders for the construction of four vessels of the Bristol type and six destroyers.

WOULD SETTLE DISPUTE

LABOR MINISTER STRIVES TO ARRANGE FOR PEACE

The G. T. R. Strike Situation Not Changed Materially—Hon. MacKenzie King Endeavoring to Arrange for Arbitration, and Both Sides Willing to Concede Conditionally.

Montreal.—The attempts of Hon. MacKenzie King, minister of labor, to secure a cessation of hostilities by a resort to arbitration, have so far resulted merely in a reiteration by both parties that they are willing to arbitrate on the lines they suggested on Monday just before the strike was ordered.

President Hays, of the Grand Trunk wrote the minister of labor that the position of the company was the same as it had always been, what he had proposed to the minister on July 13, to which the latter had replied:

"I regret that it does not seem to me that I have the requisite authority to take either of the courses you suggest, nor do I believe it would be in the public interest to do so."

Mr. Hays remarked that while the attitude of the minister appears to have changed, Messrs. Murdoch and Berry, the representatives of the men, seem to occupy the position they have taken from the beginning.

Mr. King did not find this communication, or that received from the representatives of the men, a satisfactory answer to the request he had made, that they tell him whether or not they would accept arbitration, and he telegraphed both parties telling them so, putting it this time in the following words:

"Whether, as representing one of the parties to the present dispute, you will not be willing to refer the existing differences to arbitration, provided a board of arbitrators mutually acceptable, can be secured, and the necessary expenses incidental to such a board met by the government."

To this Mr. Murdoch, vice president of the trainmen, replied:

"I answer yes, and believe that our position in that connection has been fully outlined in previous correspondence."

The reply of the Grand Trunk president to the second communication of the minister of labor was not made public, but it was stated by a leading official that it was ridiculous to suppose that the Grand Trunk would for one moment consider submitting such a vital question as that involved in the recent case to a board of arbitration composed of former heads of the two organizations involved. Mr. Clark having been for many years head of the Conductors order and Mr. Morrisey chief of that of the Trainmen.

It would appear, therefore, that if any progress is to be made by the minister it will be necessary for him to persuade Messrs. Berry and Murdoch to reconvene their committee and get their permission to deal with the arbitration in a new form.

Mr. Roosevelt Again Butts In

London.—T. P. O'Connor, president of the United Irish League of Great Britain, referring in the course of his regular contribution to a Sunday paper, to the rumor that the Irish question will form a part of any settlement reached in the inter-party conference over the question of the Lords' power of veto, says:

"I know Mr. Roosevelt brought to the attention of leading men here the vast necessity for a settlement of the relations between England and Ireland from an American viewpoint, and Mr. Roosevelt is convinced that until the Irish question is settled, there will always be an element of soreness among the large masses of Americans, which must stand in the way of better relations between the nations."

To Deliver Mail in Canada in a Week

London.—The White Star steamer Laurentic has inaugurated a new arrangement for expediting mails to Canada, under conditions of which White Star steamers sailing on Saturdays for Quebec and Montreal will take mails specially addressed for Canada and deliver them the following Saturday.

Report Brodeur Resigns

Montreal.—Liberal circles are interested in the persistent rumors that Hon. L. P. Brodeur has resigned as minister of marine to be sent to the bench. S. N. Parent, chairman of the Transcontinental, will contest St. Mary's for that position. The announcement is expected when Sir Wilfrid returns from the west.

World's Wheat Crop Will be Large

London.—Col. Mark Mayhew, a member of a well-known milling firm, regards the wheat position here as reassuring.

Reports from Argentina, Austria, Bulgaria, France, Germany, Hungary, India, Roumania and Russia all indicate good crops, India having the best crop on record.

Egyptian Forces to be Redoubled

London.—The British military force in Egypt is to be redoubled in a short time, making a total of 10,000 troops, according to a semi-official report current. It is regarded as significant in view of the Guildhall speech of Theodore Roosevelt, in which he urged stringent measures.

IMPOSSIBLE TO CHECK FIRES

Calgary.—After being out of the city for the past few days directing the force of fire fighters who are working north of Morley in an endeavor to hold in check the forest fires which are coming in from the west, Chief Forest Ranger Margach came into the city for a brief respite.

"From the north branch of Ghost river, which is the south boundary of township 28, range 8, to the north boundary of township 30, range 7, the fire is burning pretty badly and from the weather conditions I should judge that it is travelling fast and has probably wiped out any fire breaks we have been able to make. For the last few days it has been travelling slowly, but the high winds will have brought it along very fast," said Mr. Margach.

The fire has a frontage of 18 miles and along this frontage the chief ranger has 60 fire fighters at work in an endeavor to hold the flames.

"Unless we get good heavy rain it is practically impossible to put out the fires," continued Mr. Margach. "We may be able to hold them in check in places where there are meadow lands, muskegs or anything light than can be back fired and then beaten out, but that is the best we will be able to do."

When asked if any estimate of the acreage burned over had yet been made Mr. Margach said that it had been so extensive and the fires so bad that it was impossible to tell anything just yet.

"We have forestry survey parties out now trying to get behind the fires and locate places where they might be broken," he said, "but as yet have not had any success. The fires have all come in from the west and for eighteen miles there is a continuous front of fire. However, we headed it off from the direction of Calgary by backfiring along the prairie where the grass could be held in check, and the still weather of the past few days helped us a good deal."

The Voice of Canadian Counsel / London

says that after the great and strong wind, earthquake and whirlwind of Mr. C. B. Warren, for United States, we have been listening to the still small voice of Mr. J. S. Ewart for Canada and there has been something definitely refreshing to those on whom prolonged experience of none too hygienic conditions of July hotel life in The Hague are beginning to tell, in the calm after the storm. At the same time it must be admitted that in the desire to avoid exaggeration Mr. Ewart maintained so uniform a delivery that the subtler points of his argument—and it was full of neat and ingenious points—sometimes seemed to require greater emphasis laid upon them in order to bring out orally the importance of which a perusal of the shorthand record will reveal.

The C. P. R. Trouble Averted

Montreal.—As the result of repeated conferences extending over several weeks, a definite agreement has been reached between the Canadian Pacific Railway company and its conductors and trainmen, and all possibility that the men will follow the example of the G. T. R. men, and go out on strike is now removed. At the final conference between Messrs. Leonard and McTier, representing the Canadian Pacific, and Mr. Murdoch and the committee representing the trainmen and conductors, a draft form of agreement was accepted by both parties, and after it has been typewritten it will be signed by the representatives of both parties, and become binding.

Orient Buying Flour on Pacific Coast

Seattle.—Orders for thousands of barrels of flour are pouring into Puget Sound flour mills from the Orient marking the revival of business that has been at a standstill for several years. The orders have been coming in for two weeks and already enough business has been booked for delivery aboard ships sailing during July and August to keep the mills constantly busy at a time when they are ordinarily idle or undergoing summer overhauling. Local millers estimate that the July and August flow of shipments to China will aggregate a quarter of a million barrels.

Portugal's Catholics Protest

Lisbon.—The Catholics of North Portugal are protesting against King Manuel's censure of Archbishop Braga. Archbishop Braga, under order from the Vatican, suppressed the Franciscan Review on the ground that it was not necessary to the support of the national Catholic party. A royal decree of July 12 nullified the action of the archbishop who was declared to have no right to execute religious instruction without the previous consent of the government.

Chase Mormons Away from Germany

Berlin.—It is reported here that the government has decided to drive American Mormons out of Germany. The police raided a meeting of the Latter Day Saints at which many German women were present. The Mormon leader, John Kay, of Salt Lake, Utah, was ordered to leave the country at once.

King Execution Delayed

Edmonton, Alta.—Wm. Oscar King, who was to have been executed recently for the murder of his partner, Hindahl, was reprieved at the last moment until August 2, because of the non-arrival of the warrant for execution.

BENEFIT OF IRRIGATION

IMPORTANT MATTER IN WHICH ALL ARE INTERESTED

Mr. Magrath Believes Government Should Make Large Appropriation for Surveys in Determining Possibilities of Irrigation in Dry Belt—Advocates Changes in Homestead Regulations to Benefit Settlers.

Calgary.—In a speech delivered at Bassano recently by C. A. Magrath, M.P., many questions of interest to the farming communities were discussed by the speaker. He advocated certain changes in the present homestead and pre-emption conditions. Pre-emptors, he said, are compelled to pay interest annually during the period between the filing and proving up on land. He thought that the government should relax in the collection of the interest on the $3 per acre to be finally paid until the pre-emptor had raised a crop.

Mr. Magrath declared that cancellation proceedings were constantly in progress and that settlers were sticking to their places through fear that if they absented themselves they would lose them. Mr. Magrath said that all cancellation proceedings should be suspended until the spring by the government and the settlers allowed to go wherever they pleased in order to make something to tide them over till next year.

These concessions should be made to the settlers, he said, on account of the dry season. It was important that he be backed up by boards of trade in his endeavor to secure these privileges for settlers. The boards of trade of Lethbridge and of Medicine Hat had passed resolutions favorable to these measures and they have been forwarded to the federal authorities at Ottawa. Mr. Magrath requested that the Bassano board of trade, if it favored aiding the settlers in the manner he had outlined, should pass resolutions favoring them.

The speaker then went elaborately into the question of rainfall and irrigation during which he told of the benefits to be derived from the latter. He said water seeped for a distance of seven miles from an irrigation ditch in Southern Alberta. The present irrigation plans in the province, embracing as they did, several hundred thousand acres, seemed to be small when compared with the many millions of acres that required to be watered. He believed that the government should appropriate half a million dollars to be used in making surveys to determine just how large an area could be irrigated with water that was available. This was an important matter in which every public spirited citizen was interested, as it was manifestly in the best interests of the commonwealth that as large an area as possible be supplied with water and so be made to yield larger crops.

The Doctor's Answers

By Dr. Lewis Baker.

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature. Those wishing further advice free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed envelope for reply. If unable to obtain any of the drugs mentioned of your regular druggist, go to some prominent large retail drug store which is sure to be well stocked.

Mrs. A. B.—I receive many such statements as yours. You have never fully recovered from la grippe, and there are thousands who have not. Symptoms are pains, shooting pains etc. in side, chest and limbs, nervousness, insomnia, thinness and wasting, languor, shortness of breath, headaches, neurasthenia, melancholy, weakness, trembling, loss of appetite, etc. One may have any or all such symptoms and more. Here is a most wonderful tonic and vitalizer of the system:

Compound syrup of hypophosphites 5 ozs., tincture cardamome compound 1 oz. (not cardamom). Mix. Take a teaspoonful before meals and at bedtime.

Mrs. O. M.—The symptoms mentioned, such as pain in left side, heart palpitation, shortness of breath, bloating, belching, gas and wind, with fullness in stomach after eating, vomiting at times, weakness, etc., all indicate a dyspeptic condition. Avoid pork, pastries, doughy bread, etc., and have this filled: Essence of pepsin 3 ozs., comp. essence cardiol 1 oz., syrup of ginger 2 ozs. Mix. Shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal. Increase dose if necessary.

George R. W.—I cannot give treatment in these columns for such trouble as yours. The reasons are obvious. If you expect answer, you must give full name and address. I never publish names.

A. R. V.—The symptoms you describe indicate catarrh of kidneys and bladder, accompanied by puffs under eyes, swollen feet and ankles, inflamed eyelids, painful, burning scanty—or frequent urination, pain in back, soreness in bladder region, etc., can be readily corrected by the use of this excellent prescription: Fluid extract buchu 1 oz., comp. fluid balmwort 1 oz., syrup sarsaparilla comp. 4 ozs. Mix. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and one at bedtime. Drink lots of water between meals.

Mrs. X.—The bedwetting "habit" is a disease of children and can be corrected and cured by the persistent use of compound fluid balmwort. Obtain one ounce, and give from 5 to 15 drops in water, after each meal, between meals and at bedtime. Symptoms may increase at first, but continue treatment 2 or 3 months. Keep the bowels regular always.

Maid—Every lady should endeavor to improve the figure and I know of one formula which has proven very successful in developing bust, arms and neck. Tincture cardamome comp. 1 oz. (not cardamom), glycerine 2 ozs., rosewater 3 ozs., borax 1 teaspoonful. Mix all together, shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed. Then wash with hot water and soap, dry thoroughly, and massage with olive oil or sheep tallow. Do this morning and night for several weeks or months if necessary.

Mrs. G.—Use a half teacup of lard to which add a teaspoonful of sulphate of quinine. Mix, and thoroughly grease baby's chest, shoulders and abdomen. This will check and cure the cold. Apply morning and night.

Farmer—For loss of appetite I know of nothing better than 15 drops tincture cardamome comp. in half glass of hot water, 15 minutes before mealtime. A powerful tonic for stomach and stomach nerves.

Receipt for Love Charms

In the court proceedings over the will of Mrs. Mary A. Mason, of New York, it was stated that at her death she had a whole box full of love charms. One charm was made of two pins with their heads together and bound around with string. Another consisted of three tacks wrapped in tissue as though they were diamonds.

Could Hardly Walk For Pains in Back

Kidneys Were in Bad Shape but Cure Was Effectual and All Credit Given to DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY AND LIVER PILLS.

So many suffer from lame, sore, aching back and do not realize the seriousness of their condition because they do not know that this is an unmistakable symptom of diseased kidneys.

When it is so easy to get relief and cure by using Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills you would wonder why anyone should take such a terrible risk.

You can be sure of relief by using this medicine because of its direct and combined action on both liver and kidneys. Ordinary kidney medicines often fail because they do not awaken the action of the liver and bowels and do not give the kidneys any chance to get well.

Mr. Fred Gummer, Lillies, Leeds Co., Ont., writes: "I can honestly say that Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills are a wonderful medicine. For six weeks last fall I could hardly walk for pains in the back resulting from a bad case of kidney disease. I tried several remedies but got no better.

"Seeing Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills advertised I decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes I felt better and kept on until I used five boxes when I f'lt as well as I ever did. So satisfactory was this medicine that it is a pleasure to tell others about it."

Almost anybody can tell you about cures brought about by Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. Their action is so direct and certain that you will not be using them long without feeling the benefit.

Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills cure kidney diseases, biliousness, indigestion and constipation. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

THREE YOUNG MAGNATES.

Youthful Business Men Who Are Now Millionaires.

Every little while there is some little incident occurring that goes to show how fast some of the younger generation of Canadians have jumped, by their own efforts, into the millionaire class.

The other day, for instance, when the big ocean liner Lusitania pulled into New York from England it had among its passengers three young Canadians who about five years ago very few people ever expected would be in the millionaire class for a great many years to come, and yet in that short space of time, in entirely different fields had accumulated an unusually large amount of wealth for a young country like Canada.

The three of them, who chummed quite a lot together on the way over, were Mr. C. B. Gordon, the young president of the Dominion Textile Co., which represents the merger of a number of the larger cotton concerns of Canada; Mr. W. M. Aitken, more generally known as the president of the Royal Securities Corporation because it is his pet concern, but in reality the wizard of Canadian promoters, who even before he had touched the thirty-year mark had perhaps more consolidations to his credit than any other Canadian capitalist; and Mr. Shirley Ogilvie, a director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., but more generally known as one of the four young men who jumped into prominence a few years ago, when after securing the control of the Canadian Rubber Co., they formed the big Canadian rubber consolidation, now included in the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co.

Every a hasty glance back shows at what a tremendous pace all three of them have come along, for it only seems the other day when Charlie Gordon was working almost day and night to put the Standard Shirt Co. on its feet and probably had never dreamt of such a thing as the consolidation of the principal cotton concerns of the country.

When the time came, however, for this consolidation the Montreal financiers who recognized the possibilities of it, right from the outset called in Mr. Gordon's advice because it was felt that from a practical standpoint he knew a great deal about the cotton trade of the country.

When finally the merger had been completed it was found that Gordon had relinquished his position in the Standard Shirt and was to fill the important post of vice-president and managing director of the big textile concern.

Naturally, of course, from a stock market standpoint, he got right in on the ground floor, and while he was going ahead making a success of the Textile Company he was all the time adding to the value of his big holdings in the company.

Then about a year ago, when Mr. David Yuile, the president of the company, passed away, the directors insisted on Mr. Gordon stepping into the presidency, notwithstanding the fact that in doing so he would easily be the youngest Canadian to occupy such a post in a big concern.

Of course Mr. Gordon has also been a shrewd business man in other ways, but there can be little doubt but that by far the greater proportion of his present large fortune was made out of the Textile securities.

Then while young Mr. Aitken has during the past year become one of the leading figures in financial circles, both in Montreal and Toronto, still before coming up to Montreal to reside from Halifax he had put through a large number of deals, more particularly in connection with public utilities and electrical power concerns.

"Patrick," Duke of Connaught.

A propos of the probable appointment of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught to be Governor-General of Canada before very long, though not probably this year, some papers have credited the selection of the name "Patrick" as one of the many borne by His Royal Highness to the personal request of the Duke of Wellington, who acted as sponsor. As a matter of fact, Queen Victoria herself has explained that the suggestion came from a humble but patriotic daughter of Ireland. Her Majesty was out driving with two of her children when an old beggar wife hobbed across her path and cried with high-pitched fervor: "Oh, Queen dear! call the next one Patrick and all Ireland will die for ye!" In the royal family, and among his intimates, the Duke of Connaught is always called "Pat," and it is related by one who knows him very well that he can tell the good stories he has collected in his travels and campaigns, with a humor worthy of his Irish name.

A Dundas Militiaman.

The famous 77th Regiment has a new colonel, and his name is not Bertman, but Knowles.

The new colonel is, however, of the Bertram type. He was born in Flamboro Township in Wentworth County in 1862. Proceeding rapidly to a professional career, he has been a barrister in the town of Dundas since 1884. He has served on the School Board, and in the council, and was for two years mayor of the town.

His military service has been short. In 1890 he joined the 77th Regiment as captain of No. 1 Company. Exactly ten years later, he became Lieutenant-Colonel and Commanding Officer.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON V.—THIRD QUARTER,
FOR JULY 31, 1910.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xviii, 21-25
Memory Verses, 21-22—Golden
Text, Matt. vi, 14—Commentary
Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns

Our last two lessons have set before us the building of the church and the subsequent setting up of the kingdom during this age and at the close of it it is worth remembering that the church is said to be built, never set up (Matt. xvi, 18; Eph. ii, 19, 22; 1 Pet. ii, 5; Gen. ii, 22, margin, with Eph. v, 31, 32), whereas the kingdom is said to be set up, not builded (Dan. ii, 44). If we would walk worthy of God who hath called us unto His kingdom and glory (I Thess. ii, 12) the two features of today's lesson, humility and forgiveness, should be specially manifest in us, remembering the first words of our Lord's discourse on the principles of the kingdom, "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. v, 3), and also that the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit is in the sight of God of great price (1 Pet. i, 4).

As we are to have one lesson in this chapter we must consider the first portion on humility as well as the last on forgiveness. What a trial it must have been to our Lord, who had so humbled Himself, to see these disciples continually thinking and talking about who should be greatest in the kingdom even up to the last night before He was crucified and to have the mother of two of them asking for special places of honor for her sons (verse 1; xx, 20, 21; Luke ix, 46-48; xxii, 24). What must He think of the same strife still between denominations and societies and churches and individual believers, whose one aim should be to exalt Him, for one peculiar feature of the kingdom will be the Lord alone shall be exalted (Isa. ii, 11-17). A little child is His object lesson, first in reference to entering the kingdom and then in reference to greatness in it (verses 2-4), and the thought seems to be that of helplessness, dependence, teachableness and a readiness to come to Him. In order to be saved we must come utterly empty of self righteousness, simply pleading guilty. In order to position in His kingdom we must in consciousness yield to Him that He may work His works in us. It must be "Not I, but the grace of God" (I Cor. xv, 10). See verse 14 on His unwillingness that any should perish, and compare II Pet. iii, 9. As to the safety of little children who die before they know right or wrong, I find much comfort in the analogy of Duet. i, 39 As to the ministry of angels, see verse 10, with Heb. i, 14. From verse 20 learn never to ask the Lord to be present at our gatherings, but always to thank Him that He is present, according to this assurance. The instructions of verses 15-19 concerning dealing with an offending brother seems to lead to Peter's question, Lord, how oft shall I forgive him. Till seven times? (verse 21).

No doubt Peter thought that he was suggesting a wide margin when he spoke of forgiving seven times, so blind and selfish and earthly were he and his fellows in all their thoughts. Just so are we also until filled with His Spirit. Well might He often say to us: "How is it that ye do not understand?" "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me?" (Matt. xvi, 11; John xiv, 9.) Because His thoughts and ways are as far above ours as heaven is above the earth (Isa. lv, 8, 9), let us become so full of His thoughts, by His Spirit and His word, that ours shall find no place in us. Our Lord's reply to Peter, "I say not unto thee until seven times, but until seventy times seven" (verse 22), sends me away back to Gabriel's message to Daniel concerning the kingdom in Dan. ix, 24-26, R. V., where we hear him say that after seven weeks or sevens the kingdom will come, bringing in everlasting righteousness. I therefore hear our Lord say to Peter, Keep on forgiving till the kingdom comes. I always find the clearest light on Scripture in Scripture, believing that the Spirit is the best interpreter of His own words. The 666 of Rev. xiii, 18, sends me to the 666 of I Kings, x, 14, and I learn that one feature of the power of the antichrist will be his control of gold and the use he will make of it. I expect that we will yet see some connection between the 153 great fishes of the resurrection catch (John xxi, 11) and the 153,000 strangers of II Chron. ii, 17.

The kingdom is the key to and the fulcrum of many things, and many of our Lord's teachings can only be understood in the light of the kingdom as distinct from the church. The full forgiveness of the debtor of verses 24-27, like the forgiveness of the two debtors of Luke vii, 41, 42, is illustrative of the full and free forgiveness granted to every bankrupt sinner who comes to Christ, for of all such it can be truly said, "Justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus" (Rom. ii, 24). But this forgiven one afterward delivered to the tormentors till he should pay all has no parallel in salvation by grace. Even the words of Isa. xlvi, 25, in reference to transgressions and sins are "blotted out" "not remembered". The necessity of freely forgiving others if we ourselves would enjoy the forgiveness of God (verse 35) is also set forth in Matt. vi, 14, 15.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER

The Premier of Canada

By sheer force of ability and the compelling power of character, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has reached the highest position in Canadian politics, and won a name that "must live in the annals of the British Empire." He has overcome obstacles that would have daunted a man of less virile genius and patriotism. Though French was his ancestry and language, and Catholicism his religion, he has become the leader of the destinies of a great English-speaking nation, the larger part of whose people are Protestants.

He was born in St. Lin, Quebec, in 1841, of a family of rebels who fought bravely under Papineau in the revolt of 1837. From the little country school where his teacher, a Scotchman, spurred his ambition and powerfully influenced his life, he passed to L'Assomption College, and in 1864, after completing his course in law, entered the Bar. When he made his debut in politics in 1871 as a member of the Quebec Assembly, his magic eloquence, the fearlessness, strength and finality of his words, and the mastery by which he brought order out of chaos, light out of darkness, thrilled his audience.

Three years later he resigned from the Legislature and was returned to the House of Commons on the overthrow of the Macdonald government. In 1876 he became minister of inland revenue, and two years later changes in politics deprived him of this position. He was the acknowledged leader of the Liberals who were the Opposition party until 1896, when after eighteen years of waiting, the reins of government again came into their hands and in the first flush of triumph they made him Premier.

His statesmanship has been broad, liberal, far-sighted; his patriotism and his love of liberty are manifest in every act and word. He loves and cherishes the British Empire, and glories in the part that Canada takes in it; but as a Power of great possibility, sharing with the United States the golden future of the American continent, he demands of England and the world the recognition of Canada, not as a babe in the swaddling clothes of a colony, but as a full grown nation of virility and assured triumph.

Tall, erect, with a handsome presence, clean-shaven face, clear, penetrating blue eyes, a firm mouth, broad shoulders, a brow masterful and dignified, a voice soft, sonorous and ever with the suggestion of unexpected reserve, a smile gentle and soothing as a benediction, with a courtesy and kindness that surround him as an aura—this is Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada's greatest orator and statesman.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier with other members of his cabinet will speak at Red Deer on Thursday evening next. A special train will go up and return after the meeting for the benefit of those who wish to attend.

St. Joseph's Convent Red Deer

This new Institution is one that Red Deer should be proud of. It has met with considerable and well deserved success since erection two years ago. The number of boarders has increased so rapidly that it has been necessary to finish up the basement and the upper story. The building is now complete in every detail and has been provided with its own waterworks.

That the institution is filling a long felt want and that it gives highly satisfactorily results is shown by the fact that pupils are coming from all over the country and in some instances from even more considerable centres. Observers have been struck with the signs of contentment in the pupils, their attachment to the convent and confidence in the good sisters. A very good class of children have attended the convent from the beginning and nothing is left to be desired in the way of good manners and solid education. A new feature is that the convent has been provided with a typewriter of the best kind and pupils will be given an opportunity to receive a training along that important line.

Terms have been moderate in order to enable a large number of persons to benefit their children with valuable education. The school re-opens by September 1st. A prospectus will be sent by Rev Mother Superior upon application.

Last Wednesday and Thursday the town of Crossfield was visited by four fires all of which started and destroyed their respective buildings within forty-eight hours. Early Wednesday evening the Imperial Elevator was discovered to be on fire and nothing could be done to save the building. Early the same morning the new farm house of G. McLeod, which was as yet unoccupied was seen in flames and a little later the barn of J S Davie, a mile and a half west of the town was destroyed.

Shortly after midnight on Thursday the creamery burst into flames and was also completely wiped out. How all these fires started is a mystery and following one another so closely it is almost an assured fact that a fire bug has been at work. An investigation will be held.
